VLTs in Saskatchewan

When was the VLT program started?

The VLT program was initiated in 1993 at the request of the hospitality industry. The industry was concerned that local businesses, especially in rural Saskatchewan, were being hurt by Saskatchewan people going to play VLTs in neighboring jurisdictions. Introduction of the VLT program supported the rural communities by providing an additional form of entertainment for liquor permitted hotels and lounges.

What's the difference between VLTs and slot machines?

VLTs and slot machines are both considered electronic gaming devices. In Saskatchewan, VLTs are located in licensed establishments. Revenues from VLTs go to the the government's General Revenue Fund and the site contractors.

Slot machines are located at the province's six SIGA casinos as well as Casinos Moose Jaw and Regina. Revenues from slot machines go to Saskatchewan First Nations, the government's General Revenue Fund and to help support charitable causes.

How many VLTs are there in Saskatchewan?

What does SLGA do to promote responsible use of VLTs?

The government promotes the responsible use of VLTs by restricting access to those 19 years of age and older and by placing responsible use messages on the VLTs. Government also provides mandatory training to hospitality industry staff in developing socially responsible business practices, recognizing signs of problem gambling and being aware of provincial and community services available to assist those who have a problem. SLGA has committed to help fund various problem gambling activities, including operation of the toll-free problem gambling help line.

What type of responsible gaming software is installed on Saskatchewan VLTs?

As part of the government's commitment to responsible gaming, all VLTs feature responsible gaming software:

- The amount wagered is shown in dollars, rather than credits, to make players more aware of winnings or losses in actual dollars;
- A clock which shows the actual time of day to enhance player awareness of the time of day and offset the 'loss of time' phenomenon noted by problem gamblers;
- A 'pop up' reminder interrupts the player every 30 minutes, stating the amount of time the VLT has been played since the last cash-out or zero balance and requiring a response in order to continue playing; and
- An enhanced banner display that allows a variety of responsible gaming messages to raise player awareness of options such as the problem gambling help line.
